DEDICATION

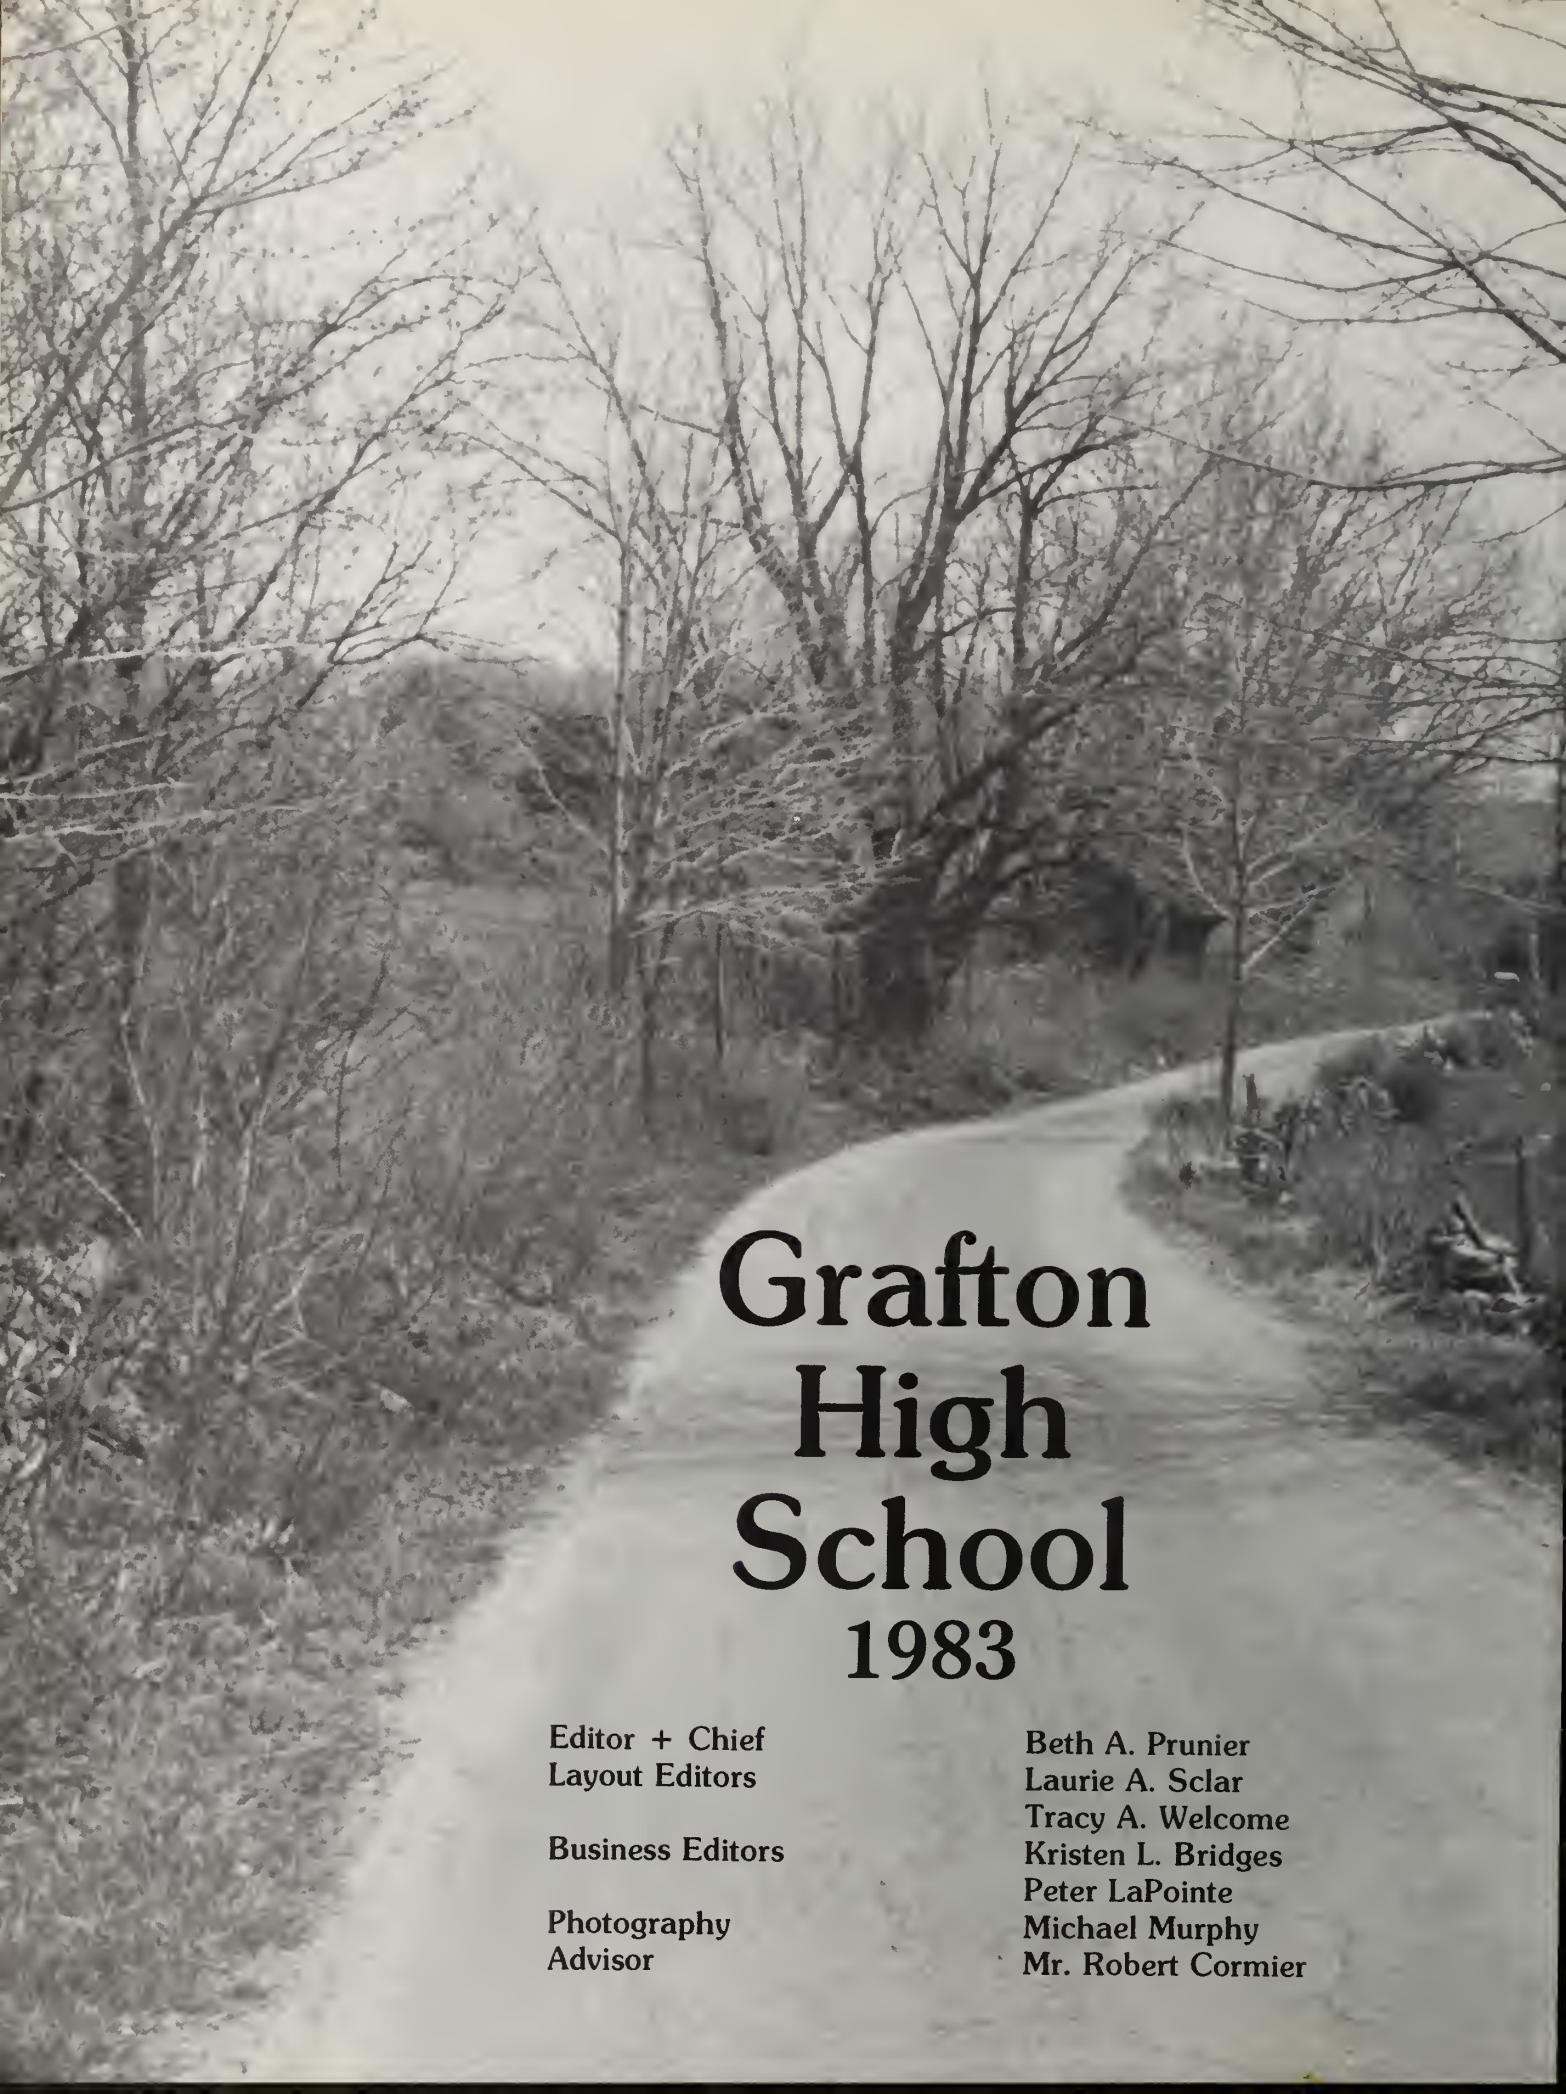

Mrs. Judith Dadah, after being conned into accepting the position of advisor, spent four hard-working years forming a class out of a group of individuals.

Her creative ideas sparked us into contributing and her frequent chastisements to "think" forced us to rely on ourselves.

In and out of the classroom, she was willing to listen to our problems, offer advice, or challenge us to test our limits. No matter what she was occupied in doing, we were never far from her thoughts. Because of this dedication, the Class of '83 was one of the richest classes to graduate from GHS. The flurry of fundraising characteristic of most senior classes was thankfully absent, due to the far-sightedness of Mrs. Dadah.

She discovered unusual methods of earning money and always assured us that we could achieve our goals. Constantly pursuing ways to make our activities (including graduation) unique, she unselfishly invested most, if not all, of her free time.

For your four years of dedication, enthusiasm, support, and creativity — Thanks, J.D.

REMEMBER WHENS . . .

Remember when Mickey Quilliam changed from sweatpants to shorts on the middle of the hockey field with all the football players practicing about two feet away.

When Bonnie Wenc wore her mini-skirt (for only one period).

How Karen Clark didn't know what granulated sugar was while she was in advanced Home Ec. class.

Tommy DeSantis' math book fell in the toilet.

When some senior girls spent the night on a haunted island.

Teacher Tim Welch threw Nicole Joncas out of class . . . You've got to be joking.

Jean Hamilton subbed herself into a field hockey game and the coach didn't know it.

When Liz Casey was on time for school . . . Neither do I.

How Lisa Desrosier wrote a "38" with lipstick on her face instead of an "83".

Remember when Lisa Speroni lost her skirt at 8th grade graduation.

Remember Sociables!!

Do certain senior girls remember the first day of their senior year . . . or not?

Karen Cofsky . . . Bentley Bound!

When we were referred to as Cookie Crumblers.

Making and painting dough people at Mrs. Ruby's house.

When God called Beth Zastawny on the phone.

Remember the second set of superlatives that was passed around.

When the boys basketball team won more than two games . . . I can't either.

Laura and Tracy Skeehan.

Jacques Cousteau visited Chrissy Johns' pool.

Kristen Bridges fell off her chair the first day of Chemistry class and wasn't even supposed to be there to begin with.

Remember all those days, nights and Saturdays of paste, glue and sew during our Sophomore year.

Rich Ruby and Larry LeBel picking weeds to sell during our X-mas Fair.

Zas lost her car at Space's house.

Gino bought for the girl's softball team.

Chris Grew took apart the gas jet in study and we almost had to evacuate the room.

When Sue Berube fell off the desk in Mrs. Langas' room wearing her prom dress — You can dress her up, but you cannot let her sit down anywhere.

Joe and Craig walking off the basketball court — Good Job Guys!

When a certain senior baseball player struck out three times in one game.

Oak n'Spruce . . .

The Millbury police kicking us out of Millbury during the senior parade.

Softball ice fight after the district finals.

Remember all those trips through the Uxbridge girls locker room . . . UGH!

When Mr. Cormier wore that dress . . . Nice legs huh.

We all thought "VACKA" was a French verb.

Cheese Whiz . . .

The time Chris LeMay crawled out the window during computer, got locked out, and had to come back in by way of the main office.

Mrs. Dadah lost her balance and all when in the hallway.

Spanish with Mrs. Mohaghegh.

We all thought it was all over when the fire started in Chemistry lab, but Chris Grew was there to save the day with the fire hose to put it out.

The Honor Society became the National Horror Society.

Our surprise guest at class night. You know . . . the one with all the hair — Nancy Turpin and Maria DeSimone remember.

Remember "pick-on Beth P." day? Every Wednesday!

Sue Berube's hiccups followed by a burp.

Mr. Lemoine the substitute teacher who taught us how to fly airplanes.

Burleigh and Donna permanently attached at the hips and shoulders.

Remember Quasy, Wimpus and Farfel.

When we were freshmen and all the senior guys looked so great. What happened?

Remember when the S.W.A.T. team egged Miss Pepka's car.

When we survived party island hideaway.

Mickey got sick . . . and so did everyone else.

Miss Pepka and Zas actually got along.

Making pizzas at Space's house.

The Jazz Band went to Washington.

Remember when everyone thought Mrs. Donahue was one of the kids.

Beth Prunier forgetting her diploma after graduation.

Remember when Mr. Prunier said he would bring the "pot".

Mike Murphy without a camera? . . . No way!

Playing volleyball in gym all year long.

Those cool girls at the dances with their togas, beach clothes, and sun glasses (who are the no-no's?).

Janel, the sex goddess; Andrew from the land down under; and Skip the Californian surfer.

Does Karen Glispin remember the jumping unicorns off Mary's TV set?

Remember how our class dominated the Spirit Week and Spring Fling Week.

Laurie ran over Tracy in the school parking lot — Tracy does everytime it rains.

Hoss used a certain drafting student's paper to blow his nose — he really should've used a tissue.

Remember senior skip day — Andy Fish doesn't.

Remember how Kim Putnam sat on a common pin in sewing.

CAUTION: Katy, Mickey and Pie; BEWARE of trashcans, recliners and couches!

Remember how Mary Poulin was the only one to have parties.

Getting "The Effect" with Mr. Dodd.

Raggedy Ann's visit to Mr. Lynch and Mr. LeMay.

Mrs. Bates got "breakfast to go" from certain seniors so she wouldn't get mad at them for being late.

Dissecting sheep hearts in prom gowns.

Mrs. Bates had Andrew Thompson read so she could listen to his Australian accent.

Remember when some senior boy thought Magnum PI was a porno flick.

The Sophomore Prom at Gumbo Woods.

New Year's Eve when Mrs. Cofsky thought we were good girls.

Steve Brueggemann smashed a bottle over his head and nearly bled to death.

Remember Chris LeMay's encounter with the blueberry pie.

Does Lisa Speroni remember Mary P's 18th birthday party?????

Sergeant Neptune.

The Class Trip "Stowaway".

Remember the days of "out-door" graduation — did we ever have sunny days in May?

Going to the prom in a Rolls Royce.

Remember when we didn't have water balloons in our hands.

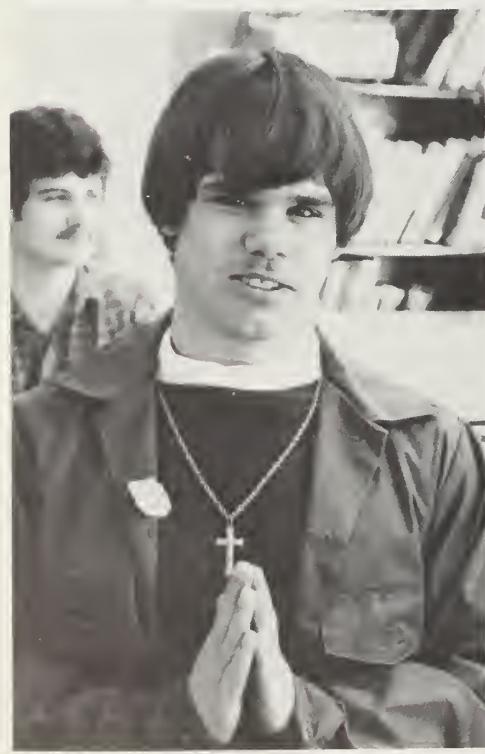

The GRANADA from Shrewsbury High.

Remember all the good times we had at GHS!

If memories were colors
Ours would be a rainbow
Connecting the past to the future,
Where ever we may be
And keep us united
As the Class of '83.

The 1983 field hockey team finished in third place in the SWCL and qualified for districts. Their overall record for the season was 9-3-1 with a loss against Blackstone-Millville in the districts. With fifteen seniors and two juniors, the team was talented and performed well together. There was a change in coaching this season. The leaving of the talented Miss Joyce LaBonte brought in Miss Wendy Moffat for her first varsity coaching job. Lori LeClaire was outstanding and led the offense with eleven goals, followed by Karen Glispin with eight. Karen Frederico and goalie Robin Zajkowski were outstanding on defense, which lead to eight shut outs for their team.

Grafton High's football team ended a grueling season with a record of 6-3-1. The Indians truly were tough competition for Southern Worcester County and proved this by placing second in the league. The team's success was a direct result of each player's effort and talent. Two people who exhibited such ability were Larry Lebel who was elected to the Telegram and Gazette Allstars and Chris Grew who made player of the week.

The tri-captains, Larry Lebel, Chris Grew, and Chris LeMay displayed leadership and skill throughout the victories as well as the defeats. This was evident when they led their team to tie the first place David Prouty, 7-7, in one of Grafton's most memorable games.

The softball team had a tremendous season: a final record of 16-2, Southern Worcester County league champions and finalists in the District III playoffs.

After last year's rebuilding, Grafton overwhelmed most of its opponents with outstanding offense and defense. The team was characterized by a never-say-die attitude, most obvious in the Millbury game where, down 9-0 after the first inning, they rallied to win 10-9 in extra innings. Team work was essential for the Indians who had eight seniors: Anne LaDuke, Lori Ann LaPointe, Lori LeClaire, Sue Pieleski, Brenda Simpson, Dina Vitkauskas, Robin Zajkowski, and Beth Zastawny.

No captains were chosen although Lori LeClaire was the representative in the districts and Beth Zastawny was MVP. The Indians believed that to win every single person would have to contribute and that belief catapulted them to the quality of playing expected from championship teams.

The Indians provided their fans with an exciting, emotionally-thrilling season to watch. Best of luck to the underclassmen in the future.

NOBODY DOES IT BETTER

This year the girl's track team had its most successful season in its eight year history. Some of their major accomplishments were to win the District E. Div. II Relay meet, first in the SWCL league meet, and also to win first in Central Mass. Districts Div. II. The team was lead by a strong nucleus of seniors which include: Jean Hamilton, Karen Waskevich, Denise Cooper, Darlene Rayner, Katy Ferris, and Karen Frederico. These six seniors completed a four year record of 35-

2-1, while attending Grafton High.

The team will be looking for some strong performances from many underclassmen to continue the successful girl's track program.

for a class wild and free

By DINA L. VITKAUSKAS

"We're wild, we're free, we're the Class of '83!"

In September 1979, that was the attitude adopted by the freshman class of Grafton High School. The following four years proved that saying to be appropriate for this unique class. From the wildly enthusiastic pep rallies to the freedom experienced during Spring Fling Week, Grafton's Class of '83 has demonstrated ingenuity, spirit, pride, maturity, and creativity.

For other classes, freshman year is characterized by confusion and a reluctance to participate in school activities, but this was not the case for the Class of '83. They threw themselves wholeheartedly into making small items for a Christmas Fair to be held their sophomore year. It was one of the most ambitious projects undertaken in many years and with a little luck it would be one of the most profitable. The faith the class placed in this fundraising activity (not to mention their entire summer) was rewarded by a successful Christmas Fair.

As sophomores, the Class of '83 continued to demonstrate the qualities that make a class memorable. The activities they were involved in freshman year became more important as they realized a new wave of freshmen were there looking up to them. There was one or more members of the class excelling in each area: athletics, art, academics, music, school government, class committees, and extracurricular activities. Always interested in new projects, the sophomore class sponsored the first Ring Dance held at G.H.S. in a few years and then spent the summer assembling a float for the first Annual Fourth of July Parade in Grafton. The float's theme was "School Days" and featured an old fashioned school room, complete with a dunce. The Class of '83's entry won a cash prize which was contributed to the class treasury.

Half of the high school years were over as the Class of '83 became juniors in September 1981 and they hadn't yet accomplished half of the things they wanted to. Many opportunities presented themselves last year for the junior class to participate in: a pep rally, a volleyball game against the seniors, and the first Junior-Senior Prom. The Juniors won the pep rally overwhelmingly and defeated the seniors in the volleyball game. Throughout both activities, every member of the class showed good sportsmanship and class.

Too soon, summer arrived and the juniors tackled another project, repainting the football bleachers. As senior year approached, members of the class were beginning to have trouble fitting class activities into their busy schedules, but they found time. Many people started working part-time jobs and some were attracted to other activities, yet they always managed to donate some of their time to their class.

Nine months ago, the Class of '83 entered the hallways for their final school year. Each activity the senior class held brought graduation one step closer. On Class Night, the seniors presented a slide show reflecting the four years they've spent at Grafton High, the first exhibit of its kind to be shown, indicating the resourcefulness of the Class of '83.

On May 27, family and friends of the graduates gathered in the gymnasium. Sitting on the basketball court, each senior was treasuring memories of the class. Perhaps a few recalled the motto on the banner at the recent pep rally held here:

If memories were colors,
Ours would be a rainbow
Connecting the past to the future,
Wherever we may be,
And keep us united
As the Class of '83.

Each person on the gym floor knew that everyone contributed to those memories, just like each raindrop adds to the total effect of a beautiful rainbow. One band of memories for one talented class, which has shown what can be done to make high school a more interesting experience. The person most responsible for revealing the hidden abilities of this group is the Class Advisor, Mrs. Judy Dadah. Her dedication and patience is deeply appreciated by the Class of '83.

Without talent
there would be no performance.

That's the way we look at it too, here at Wyman-Gordon Company.

Our business is metals engineering. We supply forgings, and other critical metal components, to key American industries like transportation, defense and agriculture. And the skills of dedicated people are as important to us as our sophisticated equipment and processes.

Indeed, it's the critical factor in every part we make for jet aircraft engines, power generating equipment, diesel engines and land improvement equipment.

We have to respect talent, because great performance depends on it. And our audience won't settle for anything less.
